

SGX Bull Charge Cares: SG Cares (January)

SGX Cares team, together with a beneficiary of SGX, AWWA Limited, attended the inaugural SG Cares Carnival held at Our Tampines Hub on Saturday 13 January to promote active volunteerism and to raise awareness for their efforts.

Over 30 ground-up groups were at the carnival to raise awareness for various social initiatives, from blood donation drives to making hats for cancer patients.

The AWWA/SGX booth engaged the public with fun and interactive activities for the entire family while raising awareness on the daily challenges experienced by physically challenged seniors. The booth was also very popular among the children, who participated in the mini-games before being presented with a floating balloon gift.

Many also took the chance to get some photos taken with their friends and family with the SGX Bull Charge props, before uploading it on Facebook or Instagram with the #SGXBullCharge.

Later in the evening, Prime Minister Lee Hsien Loong spoke at the carnival, encouraging Singaporeans to foster a better Singapore through the act of volunteering. He also dropped by the AWWA/SGX booth.

The carnival was a huge success with 15,000 attendees ranging from beneficiaries, volunteers and members of the public.

The Tree of Hearts is a symbol of hope, commitment and compassion.
